One head, many ideas:

STAEDTLER, Head of ideas

It all starts with an idea. Some ideas are quiet and transform our immediate environment, while others are groundbreaking and have a global impact. Whether kindergarten child, architect or artist: There is no monopoly on good ideas. At STAEDTLER, we believe in all these ideas – and in bringing them to the world. We manifest this attitude in our figurative mark, the Mars head, and our brand claim: Head of ideas.

We see our products as an ally. They make it possible to bring your own imagination to life. Because if you paint, draw, model, design and formulate, you can create something new. And sometimes turn the world upside down with your ideas. Just like we at STAEDTLER do again and again to this day.

Our company history is full of free spirits who put their ideas into practice. It was in 1662 when Friedrich Staedtler came up with his idea, which was free from all conventions. Against the requirements of the Nuremberg Council, he began to manufacture both mines and the sheathing for pencils. In doing so, he abolished the separation between the production of the mine by the lead cutters and the production of the mine's wooden encasement by the carpenters.
He established what was the beginning of an independent, effective pencil-making trade in Nuremberg. He followed his conviction and stood by his idea. His great-grandson Johann Sebastian Staedtler invented the coloured pencil as we still know it today, and also made it available to a wider audience outside of artist studios. For former STAEDTLER Managing Director Rudolf Kreutzer, employees were already the top priority at the beginning of the 20th century. He also had an eye on the environment and noted in a handwritten report back in 1909 during a sales trip for STAEDTLER that “large stocks of the well-known Californian redwood (...) were heavily thinned with the saw.”

Today STAEDTLER is one of the world’s leading manufacturers and suppliers of writing, painting, drawing and modelling products. We create ideas that make our products more sustainable, efficient and durable. In this way, we want to help people around the world realise and share their ideas. To achieve this goal, our currently more than 2,000 employees around the world work on the right products every day.

As a symbol of our company, the head of Mars is synonymous with ideas.
These are firmly anchored in our corporate values:

We encourage each other
